La Clase más Reciente Seleccionada para la Beca del Aspen Institute

Consumados líderes de todo el globo aplican las finanzas para el bien

Washington, D.C., 6 de junio de 2017 – El Aspen Institute nombró hoy a los miembros de su Clase 2017 de Líderes de Finanzas – 22 líderes de alto perfil que participarán en una beca de dos años diseñada para inspirarlos a tomar un rol activo en dar forma al futuro de la industria financiera global a través del liderazgo basado en valores.

Los becarios representan diversos sectores dentro de las finanzas alrededor del mundo incluyendo pensiones, fundaciones, regulación, banca, administración de activos, inversión en deuda y acciones, inversión de impacto, tarjeta de crédito y finanzas operacionales, entre otros.

“Damos la bienvenida a estos probados líderes que han alcanzado un punto en donde quieren aprovechar sus plataformas, ingeniosidad y redes para aplicar las finanzas a algunos de los más difíciles desafíos de la sociedad”, dijo Jennifer Simpson, directora general de la Beca para Líderes de Finanzas. “Los becarios traen a la mesa una variedad de experiencias y puntos de vista; nosotros en el Aspen Institute estamos preparados para ayudarles a pasar del éxito a la trascendencia en un nivel social,” dijo Peter Reiling, vicepresidente ejecutivo del Aspen Institute.

Presentando su clase inaugural en el año 2016, la Beca fue fundada conjuntamente por Ranji Nagaswami; becario del Programa de Becas Henry Crown, y CEO de Hirtle Callaghan y Christopher Varelas; Socio Fundador de Riverwood Capital, patrocinador fundador del CFAInstitute, y otros generosos donantes individuales.

Los becarios del programa para Líderes Financieros se reunirán en cuatro seminarios en el curso de dos años para explorar su propio liderazgo, valores medulares, legados deseados, y visión para la industria financiera global. Cada becario se compromete a tomar acción lanzando una empresa de liderazgo que tendrá un impacto positivo sobre el sector financiero y sobre la sociedad. Estos becarios se suman a otros más de 2,500 líderes empresariales de más de 50 países para convertirse en miembros de Aspen Global Leadership Network (AGLN).

Newest Class Selected for Aspen Institute Fellowship
Accomplished leaders from across the globe to apply finance for good.

Washington, DC, June 6, 2017 — The Aspen Institute today named the 2017 Class of its Finance Leaders Fellowship — 22 senior leaders who will participate in a two-year Fellowship designed to inspire them to take an active role in shaping the global finance industry's future through values-based leadership.

Fellows represent various sectors within finance from around the world including pensions, endowments, regulation, banking, asset management, debt and equity investing, impact investing, credit card and operational finance, among others.

“We welcome these proven leaders who have reached a point where they want to leverage their platforms, ingenuity and networks to apply finance to some of society’s toughest challenges,” said Jennifer Simpson, managing director of the Finance Leaders Fellowship. “The Fellows bring a variety of experiences and viewpoints to the table; we at the Aspen Institute are prepared to help them to move from success to significance on a societal level,” said Peter Reiling, executive vice president of the Aspen Institute.

Launching its inaugural class in 2016, the Fellowship was co-founded by Henry Crown Fellow Ranji Nagaswami, CEO of Hirtle Callaghan and Christopher Varelas, Founding Partner of Riverwood Capital with founding sponsorship from CFA Institute and other generous individual donors.

The Finance Leaders Fellows will gather at four seminars over the course of two years to explore their own leadership, core values, desired legacies, and vision for the global finance industry. Each Fellow commits to take action by launching a leadership venture that will have a positive impact on the finance sector and society. The Finance Leaders Fellows join more than 2,500 other entrepreneurial leaders from over 50 countries to become members of the Aspen Global Leadership Network (AGLN).
